The top three rows of the table report the number of permits subject to the 120 day deadline which are issued each month, and the median number of days it took to issue those permits, which also is depicted in the bar graph. The bottom three rows of the table report the total number of applications received, decisions issued, and applications pending for all levels of construction approvals, including: New Construction Permits, Interim Construction Permits, Exemptions, Registrations, applications for combined construction/operating permits (such as FESOP/NSR (Federally Enforceable State Operating Permit/New Source Review), as well as requests for modifications to existing sources, including modifications to Title V sources. However, beginning June 2000, modification approvals to Title V permits appear on page 12.

* Under air permitting rule changes to 326 IAC, Article 2, which became effective December 25, 1998, applications for permits to modify existing facilities, which previously were referred to as "construction permits", now are referred to as "amendments or modifications to existing operating permits", while the term "construction permit" only applies to "new construction/operation" permits. Along with the rule change, the Office of Air Management also initiated a new permit tracking system, and since that time, the Office of Air Management has simultaneously reported data from the new tracking system in this chart, and data from the previous tracking system in the chart on page 9, "State Air Construction Permits Being Processed Under the Previous Rule". However that report, using data from the previous tracking system, has gradually become obsolete and unnecessary, and will be replaced altogether by this report in 2001.
